Dan Johnson, faithful negro servant of the family of the late Dr. Thomas P. Hinman for 43 years, died yesterday at his home, 20 Brown street, after an illness of three weeks.

A paralytic stroke was responsible for his death. Barely conscious for the past two or three days, one of his spoken wishes was "to get up and take Mrs. Hinman some flowers."

Dan entered the service of Dr. Hinman as a coachman before the days of the automobile and later served both as a chauffeur and gardener. It is believed that his record of service with one family was the second longest on record here.

Wallace Attacks Dewey as Republicans and New Dealers Fire Blasts.

By The Associated Press.

The New Deal became more than ever the dominant election issue vesterday (Monday) when President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace took a hand in the important California and New York campaigns and Alf M. Landon declared continuation of great federal power would lead to Fascism.

Sheridan Downey, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination in California with support from the $30-Every-Thursday pension movement, was indorsed by the President as "a real liberal in mind and in heart."

Downey headquarters in Los Angeles made public a letter from the President to Representative Jerry Voorhis, expressing this opinion of the candidate and add-

Wallace Attacks Dewey.

Downey's Republican opponent is Philip Bancroft, farmer-lawyer. In Washington, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace issued a stateent to the press accusing Thomas Dewey, the Republican candite opposing Governor Herbert Lehman's re-election bid in New York, of failing to "tell the whole truth" about the income of New York state farmers. He said the young prosecutor had "covered up part of the story" in re-plying to Lehman's recent statement that the state's farm income had increased 63 per cent in the past six years.

"The cleverness of a prosecuting attorney in covering up inconven-ient evidence is of no use in meeting the real problems of agricul-ture," Wallace declared.

Dewey had asserted, Wallace continued, that New York farm income had not gone up as much as farm income in the remainder of the country. He failed to mention, the secretary said, that New York's farm income did not fall a far from 1929 to 1932 as the national farm income fell "Doesn't Tell All."

Wallace added that, in the eight months since last January 1, New York farm income declined only about 10 per cent below its level in the same period last year, while national farm income decreased about 14 per cent.

"Mr. Dewey doesn't bring that out," the secretary said. more, when useful to him to conal, he conceals.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 1, 1938.

A WORTHY AMENDMENT

Strange as it may seem, such counties in Georgia as desire to participate in the program to protect the state's forest resources from the ravages of fire cannot legally do so because of a constitutional restriction. Although 12 counties, due to popular demand, have appropriated money for the purpose, the legality of the action is subject to attack in the courts at any time. To rectify this condition and to permit other counties to lawfully join in the program, a proposed amendment to the constitution has been placed upon the ballot for ratification in the November 8 general election.

Under no circumstances should the proposal, if ratified, be construed to mean that counties, against the wishes of their people, would be compelled to contribute funds for fire protection. On the contrary, it is purely permissive. Only those counties desiring to join in the program need do so. They cannot now safely take such action no matter how desirable it may

At the present time, it should be noted, only 4,000,000 of the state's 23,000,000 acres of forest land receive anything resembling adequate fire protection. Expenditures by private interests and state and federal governments approximate only $200,000 per annum-an average of about 8 cents per acre per year for what to all intents and purposes amounts to fire insurance. But last year the loss from fire in protected forests was less than 2 per cent-1.8 per cent to be exact—as against 37 per cent burned on unprotected lands.

Many suggestions, indeed threats, of legislation have been made to restrict the cutting of lumber and production of naval stores within the state, as a conservation measure. This would be an extremely short-sighted policy. Production should be encouraged, not restricted. Not, of course, at the risk of depleting the natural supply, but by protecting the source from wanton waste and the hazards of fire, thereby maintaining, if not actually increasing

The forests of the state have brought steady financial returns for generations. Fifty thousand persons are employed in wood-using industries alone. The state ranks high in the production of lumber and furnishes 60 per cent of the nation's naval stores. More than $12,-000,000 has been invested, within the last three years, by the pulp and paper industry.

This great natural resource, the forests, should be protected from its most destructive enemy-fire. But this can be successfully accomplished only by a concerted, never-ending effort on the part of the individual and the county, state and federal governments. To make such an effort possible, however, the proposed amendment first must be ratified by the people on November 8.

WHAT THE TOURIST SEES

When a man hops into a car and sets out on a vacation trip with his family, things other than the beautiful scenery have been taken into consideration in planning the itinerary. True, the scheduled trip was planned primarily to give the family an outing and, at the same time, give them the benefits of such cultural advantages as may be had by riding through states with the most attractive scenery.

But inasmuch as every available penny must, ofttimes, be made to give a full account of itself, otherwise the trip would not be possible, one particular sight having neither cultural nor educational value—the gasoline pump with the high tax sign-must be avoided. So individuals, as well as automobile clubs, have fallen into the habit, when mapping the "easiest way" of routing themselves around these high tax centers. This practice has brought benefits of far greater value than the high tax return to a number of states fortunate enough to participate in the detours. Kansas, in particular, has become the happy beneficiary of inequitable taxes in adjoining states. The value of its tourist trade for the season just ended is estimated to have reached $88,000,000—an amount considerably larger than the value of this agricultural state's major crop-wheat. The tourist crop, as many delighted Kansans have pointed out, has many advantages over the business of raising wheat. It is little subject to the vagaries of the weather, or to the usual speculative influences, or to political expediency, nor is it restricted to conform to acreage reduction programs. And there's no waiting for returns, for the mailing of parity checks. It's net cash on the barrel head.

So the tourist, as well as the people of the state, will doubtless continue to be satisfied with the things to be seen in Kansas.

RUMANIA NEXT?

Observers of the central European colosseum in which might plays the gladiatorial role are generally agreed that Rumania will be the next goal of the Hitler "drang nach osten." They foresee a period in which Germany will digest Czechoslovakia, to be followed by an extension of control into the rich and backward kingdom of Carol.

If the pattern of events in the last two weeks are put together, it is fairly clear that this time is not far off-indeed closer than is generally believed probable. Rumania is ripe for the plucking, and the Reichfuehrer is not a man to permit the fruit to fall to the ground or into another's lap. There is, in that kingdom, as in Czechoslovakia, an infusion of minorities which annoys the lesser lights of the Berlin hegemony. They, too, were acquired following the World War, and demands for their return may be expected as quickly as the Czech-Hungarian border can be re-established through the "good offices" of Germany and Italy.

But more potent than the minority question are the vital needs of the Nazi war machine for resources that have not been obtained in the conquests of Czechoslovakia and Austria. Both countries merely complicated the possession of industrial areas without the means of exploiting their capacity. Both depended upon an exportable surplus, just as does Germany. The gains have been in population, in factories which are now a burden and, to some extent, badly-needed agricultural land.

On the other hand, the ripe plum of Rumania is almost undeveloped. Its exploitation will provide an immediate and badly needed market for the products of the Reich and at the same time provide the grist for the industrial mills of Hitlerdom. Its vast stores of oil would provide the motive power for the rolling armies. Its wide fields of grain would provide food for the military and civilian population.

This last becomes doubly significant when it is remembered that within Germany land needed for growing foodstuffs, already woefully scarce, is constantly being turned to military uses at a terrible cost in the production of these vital elements. Airports and the new wide military roads and fortifications have taken their toll. It is difficult, in this country, to conceive the effect of this withdrawal of land from cultivation. Each small acre means less food for many Nazis. This could not be done unless provision has been made for the use of these acres as a weapon for still greater acres that will restore the food supply of the country. Certainly it is not going to be purchased from aboard when raw materials are needed for the military maw.

Rumania, then, looms as the "promised land" for the German. It is weak, almost friendless. Its king is none too popular, and a Nazi element is vociferous if not overwhelming. One does not have to look far into the past to chart the immediate future. The plum will drop into Hitler's lap or not at all. There is another "peace" to be bought before many months have passed.

On Long Island, a sedan skidded 114 feet on its top with no injury to a lady passenger, proving the safety value of the new piled-up coif-

WHAT ARE YOUNG PEOPLE TO DO WITH THEMSELVES?

(From The Charlotte Observer.) It is now against the federal laws of the land for anybody under 18 years of age to work in any gainful occupation that may be construed as involved in interstate commerce, other than on the farms, except in certain stated and defined

All of us should unite in feeling that we can get along industrially in America without sacrificing the bodies and minds and souls of immature childhood upon the altar of sheer commercial avarice and greed.

But in striving for this worthy end, it may be that the federal government has undertaken a system of regimentation that will not be as protective to childhood in some cases as it will destructive of childhood in other cases. If young people under 18 years of age are unable to qualify for the specialized and selective labors which are legalized by means of exceptions in the administration of this wage-hour legislation, what are they going to do with themselves? The streets are full of those who are between the ages of 14 and 18 for the reason that under the laws of North Carolina these cannot be compelled to attend public schools. This compulsion ends when they reach 14.

Thus, it is obvious that between the time when the law withdraws its application against them as to schools, and the time when the law qualifies them for general employment, lies a period of four years. What are these young people going to do with themselves during these four years of idleness? They can neither be compelled by law to go to school and they are not allowed by law to If they utilized these four years in such sheer idleness and baleful leisure as tend to convert many of them into the ways of criminal delinquency, no surprise should attach. And we are still horse-and-buggy enough to believe that it is infintely better for the child and for society to have young people at some gainful occupation than it is for them legally to have at their disposal four years during which they can practice up on becoming permanent criminal wards of the state

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

POLETTI FOR N. Y. GOVERNOR? WASHINGTON, Oct. 31. In the excitements of the New York campaign, the meaning of Herbert Lehman's price running again has escaped general attention. His public contract with the worried New York Democrats called only for Charles Poletti's nomination as lieutenant governor. But his private expectation is that Poletti will also be his successor when the time

Tom Dewey may steal the great inheritance but, for the present, young Poletti is the acknowledged heir apparent of the Governor of New York. And that fact presents a puzzle of considerable national significance.

Lehman's dislike and distrust of the President and his New Dealers, and the hearty way in which the White House returns these emotions, are open secrets. Yet, by anointing Poletti, Lehman, the acclaimed Democratic conservative, has not only weakened the local power of the New Dealers' great enemy, Jim Farley. He has also advanced one of the few men in New York politics with whom the New Dealers feel themselves in complete sympathy.

Poletti is a shrewd, energetic young fellow, son of a New England stonecutter, largely self-educated, and an able lawyer. Some time ago, politics tempted him from the Wall Street office of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed. He attracted Lehman's attention, became counsel to the Governor, and was subsequently appointed to the bench. He still remains Lehman's right-hand man, but his relations are very close with the New Deal element in Washington and the Labor party leaders in New York.

He served the Labor party as its floor leader in the state constitutional convention and, unless all appearances deceive, he is a distinctly left-wing Democrat. Fortunately for him, he inspires confidence in men of different Besides the fatherly affection of Herbert Lehman, he retains the trust of his deeply conservative former boss, John W. Davis, who recently announced for the Democrats on his account.

THE LITTLE JOKE The story of Charles Poletti brings out the full irony of the New York situation. Not so very many months ago, whispers were coming from the White House that Lehman would be quietly retired from politics. The whispers hinted that he was a sad backslider, and one who had outlived his usefulness.

And now the man whom "the New Deal didn't need" has not only been drafted as the one candidate who may keep New York Democratic. He has also won advancement for Poletti, where the New Dealers failed so miserably to do the same thing for their favorite, Solicitor General Robert P. Jackson. Lehman must laugh up his sleeve, when he has the time to. And so, for that matter, must the New Dealers, for Lehman, their intended victim, is now serving their interests to the full.

GAIN AND LOSS Whether or not he enjoys turning the tables on the New Dealers, Herbert Lehman emerges as a large-minded man. His enmity with the White House dates back to the 1936 campaign, when he ran behind the President in New York after he had been elaborately drafted to help the party ticket. Having taken so much trouble to get Lehman's the President seems to have been annoyed that he had abased himself to no purpose. At any rate, he proceeded to ignore Lehman

Naturally hurt by his old friend's change of attitude, Lehman's feelings were further exacerbated when he expressed his honest opinion on the court plan-and was denounced as seven different kinds of a black traitor. Finally, this spring, he and the President had their spat about New York state's balanced budget. After the President had made fun of his claims as a budget-balancer, Lehman's normal reaction would have been to have his revenge at whatever cost. His best revenge would have been to go to the senate, where he could have given more strength to the conservative Democrats than any other new recruit. Instead, he allowed himself to be drafted for the governorship once more.

Altogether he is a singular politician—this prosperous banker with a social conscience. He might be described as the best type of conservative, for he is a man who wishes to conserve what is good, yet recognizes and opposes what is bad. His methods are careful. His administration is efficient. He has shown great skill and good sense in piloting his state through the social changes of the last years.

With all his good qualities, he may be beaten on November 8 If Dewey wins, the country will have gained a new and improved Republican party. But it will also have lost a valuable leader. ## FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Laughable NEW YORK, Oct. Mr. Farley 31.—The chickens never did roost too high for some of the friends of our Mr. James Farley, so it was indeed laughable of to make grabs at his trunks and yell, "Ow! Keep your punches up!" When our Mr. Tom Dewey exposed the yeggmanship of certain Democratic statesmen in Al-bany in one of his recitations last week it was indeed laughable to all who used to know Mr. Farley as chairman of the cauliflower commission and see him on fight nights at the Garden sitting just around the corner from the gorillas who, by orders of the commission, were supposed to be excluded from those cultural exercises.

In the interest of moral hy giene, Mr. Farley's commission had ruled that criminals were not to be admitted to any of the fight clubs, even as cash customers, but on glamorous nights in those dear, dear, dizzy days of old, our James. from his cathedral, would gaze about and scan the countenances of the very cream-or should one say the scum—of the New York underworld. Indeed (that's three times I have used that word; must watch), there came one grand gala when, with more than a million dollars in the house, there were three ex-convicts among the personal attendants of the tigers in the main event, all licensed by Mr. Farley's commission

On such evenings Special Row Mr. Farley's place was in a special row reserved for certain of more eminent veggs from the hall fine, home-loving gentlemen all with callouses on their hands not from humble toil, but from the handling of red-hot stoves in the routine of their daily life.

Mr. Farley has always been a man of liberal mind toward the hard realities of the world. He once explained that he lacked the cruelty to enforce his own regulations, which would have banished fallen men from pugilism, because after all, they did have to live. and if every hand were turned against them and all doors barred ey would be forced to resume a life of crime. For this I honor him of course, but I think he should make that his stand publicly and defend the propriety of yeggmanship in politics in Albany on the ground that if yeggs be excluded from politics and pugilism they will have no alternative but crime of the most vulgar sort.

Not Such Certainly it didn't A Secret take Mr. Dewey to discover that the gambling rights are regularly parceled out in the city of Saratoga Springs, so close to Albany that on quiet evenings the governor, his palace, may hear the little mothball whir and click and the little cubes gamboling on the green. In fact, gambling had become so important a part of the commerce of Saratoga Springs that when, last summer, through some political error, gambling was forbidden, some of the citizens formed a picket line to protest that their bread and butter was being taken away from them There was much to their contention that gambling should be nermitted, but the trouble was that it was against the law, a fact which with activity. # ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

CITY OF THE BIG SHOULDERS CHICAGO, III., Oct. 31,-Carl Sandburg called it the City of the Big Shoulders. Hog butcher for the world it is.

To it came yesterday 21 cattlemen from the cattle sections of the nation. Their tanned faces. Their huge hats, their store suits, all stamp them and their trade. They came as representatives of the various cattle associations to see what happens to beef, what makes prices, and to see all the great machinery of the packing plants. The names of their towns are like names out of western They are here from Wolfe, Wyo.; from Choteau, Mont.; stories. from Yakima, Wash.; from Nenzel, Neb.; from Silver City, N. M. Young Walter McGrath, from the F. M. bar ranch at Silver City, is on the ranch his father and grandfather had before him.

For most of them this visit to Chicago is the first one to the They have shipped thousands of cattle here. Now they are "east." to see where they go and what the beef industry is once the packing plants receive the raw material.

They've heard of the south and its growing interest in livestock. It is a fabulous sort of country to them. To know that an acre of grass land will support three or four cows, startles them. They need 30 of their acres for a cow. Water and grass together is something of which they dream. The south has it. They talk of it wistfully.

They sit and talk and argue the superiority of their own states. They swap lies and cattle dips. They become involved in the problem of when a heifer ceases to be a heifer and becomes a cow. They swear at the South American beef trade with its cheap beef; they go to dinner and eat oysters and shrimp in vast quantities and those who drink try strange mixtures they've heard about. They are interesting people.

THE PACKING INDUSTRY The packing industry is, of course, one of the great industries of America. It is first in value across most of the years. It has a greater output value each year than petroleum and leads motors in most years. If there is added to the meat industry the value of its poultry and eggs, it is the first industry each year by a good margin. One of the packing companies churns more butter and sells more poultry and eggs than any other agency in America or the world.

There are 1,223 meat packing plants in Ameria with a financial rating high enough to be on the government lists. Georgia has four of them. They are important factors in the growth of their communities.

One of the major companies invests $2,000,000 each day. The others average about the same. It is a tremendous business, this one of supplying chuck roasts and stew meat, T-bone steaks and all the other cuts of beef to the millions who eat beef. Pork is another story. So are poultry and eggs. Beef is the greatest.

The cattle still come to Chicago. Every day brings its quota of bawling cattle to the pens. It is a most amazing business, this keeping beef rolling on trucks and trains to all parts of the nation.

THE SOUTH'S EATING HABITS One of the officials of a major company said: "Had you thought about the change in eating habits in the south?"

I shook a negative head. "We used to ship most of our dry salt pork to the south in the slabs you all knew at home and at the country stores. Now we ship less and less of it. It became too high in price. They turned to fresh meat or to some substitute. Today we ship more sausage to the south than ever before. Hundreds of carloads of cheese go to the south and fine cheese is being made there. The packing industry is the first to feel and notice changes in eating habits. The packers believe that by 1940 or 1941 the production of hogs in America will be back to normal. The "ploughing under" of hogs brought production far below normal. That means less pork has been eaten. Packers wonder if by 1940 the eating habits will changed with regard to pork.

Little pork is exported. Oddly enough a trend, which is disappearing, was the importation of Polish hams. The finest hams the world are produced in America, yet for a time there were many hams brought in from Poland. The cattlemen, though, don't talk of such things. They talk of baloney bulls and of how innocent dairy cattle are sold across the block as being good beef; they worry about trade pacts with the Argentine; they inquire about prices, feeding, grazing, what the "shrinkage" is in shipping cattle; they talk beef. They talk beef and they grow it. One of the major companies handled last year 6,500,000,000 pounds of products. Multiply that by an approximate four. Then add to it what all the smaller plants Food for the nation is a daily drama and this City of the Big Shoulders has the heart of it. Men sit about a table and route carloads of beef, lamb, pork, and veal over the nation; telegrams by the hundreds pour in; telephones ring; railroad trains empty their loads of sheep, pigs and peef cattle. It is an exciting drama and one in which Georgia is destined to play an increasingly greater part.

Those of us who agree with him might well take his statement as a signal for an end to quarreling over whether the south is a No. 1 problem or not. Whatever its rank and whatever its problem, the south has attracted a national economic attention that bids fair to turn all its problems to promises if southerners will stop cutting each other's throats and kicking against a stone wall.

Georgia scored a touchdown on Holy Cross. Georgia punched down field again and a perfect pass was dropped in the end zone.

Georgia drove against Holy Cross again and had the ball on the two-yard line. Officials failed to notify Coach Hunt about excessive time out and Georgia was penalized five. This was just before the half. The Bulldogs likely would have punched over from the two-yard line, but they lost ground from

There were two other scoring chances. There were long runs by Carroll Thomas and Vassa Cate. Cate was tripped as he passed the last defender. Thomas ran 40 yards and was brought down by the safety man.

The Bulldogs now are getting ready for Florida. Potentially, they are much better than the Holy Cross score showed. This is just mentioned to counteract any opinions that Georgia hasn't got what it takes to beat Florida at Jacksonville. The 'Gators won last year.

OF CRASH INJURIES

Struck Sunday While Attempting To Load Mattress Into His Car.

Curtis L. Shipp, 56, of 123 North Avenue, N. W., died yesterday of injuries he received Sunday when he was knocked down by an automobile near his home. The death brought the number of traffic fatalities within city limits this year to 42.

Mr. Shipp was injured while attempting to load a mattress into his car, police reported. Officers said the machine which knocked Mr. Shipp to the pavement was driven by Willis King, of 527 Johnson road. Mr. Shipp's wife was in the car at the time of the accident.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. W. R. Johnson, and Misses Lucile, Myrtle and Lomita Shipp; one son, J. L. Shipp; a brother, W. L. Shipp, of Roanoke, Ala., and a sister, Mrs. Cora Austin, also of Roanoke.

Services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Peachtree chapel. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

MY DAY Youth Is Courageous About Unimportant Things

WASHINGTON.-It rained yesterday when we awoke, and I could not help thinking what a pity it is that we cannot make an arrangement with nature by which she could send rain to the spots which need it most. As we drove along in Georgia the other night, the sky was reddened by a forest fire, and I could see no reason why it should not extend through a vast area, because everything was so dry. In spite of the dryness, however, they were burning grass along the sides of the road.

An idea seems to persist that to burn the land enriches it. I believe this a fallacy, but even if it achieved the desired results, I cannot imagine anything more dangerous than to start a ground fire, which may spread into the neighboring woods, at a time when everything is dry. On Friday we came through land where, apparently, the same thing had happened, for all the lower branches of the pine trees were scorched, and litle trees were killed. These are signs of a wastefulness which makes one shudder in these days when every intelligent person realizes the need of tree conservation. The dining car yesterday morning was crowded with young men, evidently a football team on its way to a game in the afternoon. The papers predicted that the rain would stop, though it would be gray all day. For the players' sake I hoped it would stop raining, for at their age a game is the most important thing in life. I was amused by three or four of the boys who had evidently decided to declare their independence of convention, and had come to breakfast with their shirts open at the collar and no neckties. They may, of course, have done it entirely without thinking, but they gave the impression of feeling very big and independent and above the ordinary amenities of dining car procedure.

That is one of the things which always makes one smile rather tenderly about young people—they are so courageous about the totally unimportant things. They will break any convention which doesn't matter, but only the exceptional ones among them will face the music when it comes to a fundamental thing where their fellow young people have real differences of opinion.

FRANCES HENLEY BOX, of Columbus, is the author of an intriguing illustrated story entitled "Coffee," which merits its Important position in the first the Junior League Magazine. The scene is laid on the River Bend section near Columbus, where the Chattahoochee winds its way through the red clay banks which give the reddish color to its waters. The story deals with Tom Derricott, a colored man who owned a one-mule farm and 40 acres of land wedged between the white folks' plantations. He had more children than the proverbial old woman who lived in the shoe. CHICAGO, Oct. 31,-(AP)-Indications of at least some moisture relief for drouth sections of Kansas and Nebraska tended to make Chicago wheat prices average slightly lower today.

On the other hand, expectations in various quarters that November unofficial crop estimates would show sharply reduced acreage because of drouth, served at times to bring about minor transient advances. Buying, though, quickly diminished on upturns, and retions ensued. Acting as a handicap to higher prices was the fact that export business in North American grain continued to be of negligible ume. Furthermore, the United States wheat visible supply total decreased only 567,000 bushels versus 4,693,000 bushels decrease a year ago. Forecasts pointed to showers in domestic dry districts southwest and west, but observers said soaking general rains were needed to be of much benefit. Meanwhile, cables told of light rains in Australia, and of a fair increase of

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 .- (AP)-Selling of rails was taken in stride by the stock market today and. with selected industrials exhibiting strength, the list generally gave a better than expected account of itself.

Carriers, depressed by Saturday's late decision against a pro-posed railway wage cut backed down as much as two points at the opening. Offerings quickly dried up, however, and most transportation stocks closed with only moderate declines while issues favored in other groups emerged with advances of fractions to around two.

PRETTY BRUNETTE SHOT, DIES IN HOTEL

Victim of Bullet Wound in Temple Identified as Charlotte Girl.

Miss Ruth Littlefield, 18, for-merly of Charlotte, N. C., was found dying last night in a sec-ond-floor room of a hotel at 63 Cain street, N. W., shortly after the propulations heard a shot the proprietress heard a shot.

Detectives M. V. Moss and H. Sexton, called to the hotel, said the girl, a pretty brunette, died within five minutes of their arrival. A .32-caliber revolver was found beside her and she had been n the right temple. detectives recalled that about six weeks ago Mrs. Marie Mitchell, 30, either jumped or fell from the second story of the same hotel, but was not injured fatally. She since had been dismissed from Grady hospital.

Miss Clyde Swanson, friend of the dead girl, said they were to-gether earlier in the night and that Miss Littlefield left a cafe at about 9:30 o'clock, saying she was "going home." The shot was fired about 10 o'clock, Mrs. N. Moore, proprietress, told detectives.

Miss Littlefield came to Atlanta six months ago from Charlotte. The body was taken to the J. Austin Dillon funeral home.

that the carriers should withdraw their action for a 15 per cent wage cut was disappointing to Wall Street investment circles. Hence rail bonds were offered in fair

Generally, however, the losses were not as wide as had been expected before the opening. Even those under considerable pressure at the start met late support, and investment circles concluded there was a chance the carriers might eventually gain something from government efforts to stabilize the situation which might at least partially offset the fact finding board's recommendation.

Boone Tells Hunt About the Attempt On His Life—and Blames McCandless

BY DENVER BARDWELL.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE,

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Alice Markley, one of a group of New Englanders who are emigrating to California, is saved by Jere Boone, young trapper and buffalo bunter, from being swept overboard when the side-wheeler Kearny hits a snag in the Missouri river. She admires the buckskin-clad plainesman but she shows her revuision and avoids him after Peter McCandless, Indian trader who is outfitting the wagon train headed by Elias Hunt, refers to Jere as a squaw man. Peter dislikes him because he refuses to trade with him. Peter lands below Kansas City at his wagon factory and Stubby, his iteutenant, directs the unloading of heavy boxes of Enfield rifles to be traded with the Indians for buffalo hides. The plan is for Indians to massacre the emigrants and get the rifles from the wagons false bottoms. McCandless tells Stubby he's going with Hunt's wagon train to "save" a pretty girl. Jere accepts Hunt's invitation to act as guide to be near Alice but Peter says he's engaged Tom Hendon, whom Jere knows to be a renegade. Hunt says Jere may go along but Stubby buys up options on all available wagons. The wife of one of Hunt's men dies, he wants to return east and Jere buys his wagon but his start is delayed by a fake message from Stubby and men named Jenks and Zee rob htm and hold him bound in an old log cabin. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MENNO. 14

All afternoon, and all through the night, Stanley Wood and Van Eyk searched for Gonfala. Finally they returned exhausted and disheartened to camp. "I'm afraid it's no use." Van Evk declared solemnly. "If she were alive she would have answered our signals."

Wood nodded hopelessly as his companion continued. "If I thought there was a shred of hope, I'd be willing to carry on. But there isn't, Stan. We'd better be getting along. I've got to get home. I've already overstayed my time." Wood road.

Then he answered: "I don't blame you, Van. You go along. I'm staying. I don't expect to find her alive, but at least I want to know what happened." "You can't do much alone."

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Stx nights later, as Wood tossed nervously on his cot, a figure darkened the doorway of his tent. He sprang to his feet. "Tarzan!" come to find Gonfala," the ape-man said. "I'll send a message by runner to Tarzan. If would have spoken less confidently had he
